Note: Preference will be given to those who are actively teaching middle or high school classes. Those teachers from off-island or from West Hawaii may apply for a travel stipend that includes air fare and shared rental car (or mileage where applicable), lodging, and meals and incidentals. If the applicant doesn't complete the course, then he or she must reimburse the University of Hawai'i for his or her stipend. Teachers who need a place to stay in Hilo are expected to share a dormitory room; they could request a particular roommate. Once accepted, participants must sign a liability release form.

Those DOE teachers seeking to use this course for professional advancement (increase in pay scale) are responsible for obtaining approval from their principal and filling out the necessary paperwork. Transcript processing and fees required to document course completion are also the sole responsibility of the participant.
